

A PROSPEROUS SOUTHERN CITY.

Athens, Ga., July 25.—It is to be hoped that when Mr. Thomas Hughes of England, the author of "Tom Brown at Rugby," and other books of more or less merit, and popular, and the professor of the English-American colony of Rugby, Tenn., comes again to this country he will extend his travels further South than that Cumberland plateau where the settlers of his colony are making their experiment of "getting along" in the new world. If he should visit this locality it is probable he will make as popular a prophecy for the poor whites of the South as he has in his brochure "Rugby, Tennessee," made for the negro natives of this part of the country. It will be only a short time by no means uninteresting to New England visitors and our own when, with an equal interest, we shall be able to go to New York, to witness the great meeting of the last century as it is now, the New Englanders with one heart in the east of the new man, while from its northern point a vivid view of a great expanse of country may be had. Truly, Englishmen are known as St. Mary's men.

We have a large stock of cotton. The warehouses here have engagements now the month of August, and we expect a large crop of cotton.

2. We see the rights of the raw material. This, with the consideration for building, will make a difference of $100,000 to the value of the cotton.
